Investment strategies

The “Life cycle strategies” are new and unique in the field of digital pensions. The underlying principle of life cycle strategies is that younger investors have more time left until they reach retirement age, and they can therefore afford to include a higher equity proportion in their portfolios. As investors get older, their retirement capital generally increases, but there is less time remaining until they retire. For this reason, it makes sense to progressively convert pension capital into less risky bonds, and reduce the risk of pension savings fluctuating in value just before retirement. For investors who do not wish to dynamically adjust their asset allocation, we also offer static strategies with an equity allocation ranging from 20% to 100%. All of the investment strategies are based on the cost-effective ESG index funds from Vanguard.

The “Focus Switzerland” option also makes it possible for you to increase your portfolio's investment focus on the Swiss market. The risk-based investment strategy (minimum variance) implemented by OLZ focuses on selected small and medium-sized listed Swiss companies. Besides the risk aspect, the investment strategy pursues clearly defined sustainability criteria.
